

Movement to Get Irrigation In This District

Rehabilitation Officer Will Be Here Dec. 10th

In answer to a letter from D. Broadfoot, secretary of the Redcliff Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Vallance, Rehabilitation Officer of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act, gave him notice that he would pay a visit to Redcliff about the 10th of December to discuss the question as advocated by Redcliff and vicinity for introducing irrigation in this district.

It is requested that farmers around here who are interested in this movement should be present at this meeting.

It is expected that Hon. Mr. G. J. Macdonald, former minister of Agriculture, will also be in the district at the same time and is also interested in the movement for irrigation in the Redcliff-Rosamend area.

As there is a great need for irrigation in this section which has experienced drought for several years, and there are possibilities for providing water there is no doubt that some movement should be made.

Fair Gathering At Last Sunday Concert

The Program Was Put on By Local Talent

A fair attendance was at the fourth concert which was held last Sunday evening for the purpose of collecting funds to disburse among the needy and unemployed.

The program was put on by local talent and Mrs. McGinsey and Miss Irene Cooke accompanied the singers.

The program was thoroughly enjoyed by all, unfortunately a few of the artists which had agreed to contribute were unable to be present.

Those taking part were E. Miller and A. Hurlbert who gave two interesting duets which they accompanied with their guitars and they were called back, so well did they please the crowd.

Little Dorine Fitzhugh very cleverly rendered a recitation and was followed by choruses led by E. Martin. Songs were rendered by Messrs. F. Parsons, J. Davies and W. Swanson and they were so pleasantly rendered that the audience demanded encores. Miss Evelyn Waters also rendered a most pleasing solo and was followed by more community singing.

The program was closed with the National Anthem.

Those in charge of the entertainment have warned the young men that they will not be allowed in the hall if they don't keep quiet.

The program for next Sunday evening will be arranged with a number of entertainers from Medicine Hat and we are assured it will be one of the best yet.

The collection last Sunday amounted to $10.23 bringing the total now up to $60.36.

Uta. Pool Elevators Experienced Deficits

Failure of Overseas Export Was Cause of Deficit

A very small grain crop in 1936 and unusual marketing conditions, and the failure of overseas demand for wheat to develop from Vancouver on anything like the scale of previous years resulted in Alberta Pool Elevators experiencing an operating loss of $571,696.11 during the 1936-37 business year. This is formally recorded in the annual report of R. D. Purdy, general manager, to the board of directors of the pool the board of directors of the Alberta Wheat Pool, presented to the fifteenth annual delegates meeting, which convened in Calgary Tuesday, November 23rd.

School Literary News

The weekly meeting of the Literary Society held in the auditorium on Friday November 26th, proved to be chiefly of a musical nature.

Feature numbers were: A quartet composed of Gene Maillard, Hilda Humphrey, Esther Rexin and May Martin accompanied by Doreen Cooke at the piano, sang "Little Old Lady." Betty Badner then favored the audience with a dance.

Vivian Marty and Agnes Rindahl then sang "Blue Hawaii." Carol Sellhorn then, rendered a musical selection on the piano. The Lit. accompanied by Kathleen Sheehy at the piano, then sang their theme song "Lit'Day" for the first.

Every number was heartily received by the audience.

In her criticism of the meeting, Miss Sellhorn stated that the business part of the meeting was run smoothly and carefully. She congratulated the Moral League on their good work. Miss Sellhorn also said that the programs were improving.

The meeting this Friday afternoon at 3:00 p.m. will take the form of educational lantern slides "The Arctic Peoples." A comedy "Hop O' My Thumb" will also be put on. Visitors will be welcome. There will be a silver collection to help defray expenses.

H. W. Wood Retires U. F. A. Chairmanship

Has Occupied The Position Since First Organized

Mr. H. W. Wood, C.M.G., who has been chairman of the Wheat Pool since 1923 has retired from the chairmanship at the annual meeting last week-end. His retirement was received by the Board of Directors with regret. They named him honor president of the Alberta Wheat Pool and fixed a life pension in appreciation of his service. Mr. H. Kith, South-west will fill the position vacated by Mr. Wood, and the entire board of directors was re-elected.

Mr. Wood is now 78 years of age and has been instrumental in organizing the U. F. A.

Local Chamber of Commerce Met on Tuesday

Local Hat Members Attended and Addressed the Meeting

Local Chamber of Commerce held a meeting in the Town Hall last Tuesday evening and Messrs. A. P. Burns, R. Boyd, R. Black and A. Vickers, representatives of the Medicine Hat Chamber of Commerce were present and addressed the meeting in connection with the movement to get irrigation in this farming district.

The absence of a number of town and industrial officials and business men was a disappointment as there is no doubt that the development of irrigation in this district would mean the improvement of business in all lines. C. T. Hall, chairman of the local Chamber conducted the meeting and D. Broadfoot, Secretary, outlined the business conducted since the organization.

Mr. Boyd stated Medicine Hat was glad to co-operate with Redcliff, and regretted Mr. H. Kith, their secretary, was unable to be present on account of illness.

Mr. Burns outlined what had been done by the Hat chamber in connection with the irrigation problem and he felt that this district would be sunk if something along that line was not accomplished, and the government would have to feed the people or move them out of the district.

He was of the opinion that this district had the best grass from here to Mexico and that unless the land were irrigated this grass would be eaten down. He felt that both governments were responsible for conditions and both could make improvements. Mr. Burns had been informed by engineers that this district is the last big scheme of irrigation on this continent which is available and it is up to the governments for political reasons only to get 150,000 acres around here under water. He claimed that some of our trouble was that western members did not understand modern conditions and that we needed to send representatives to Ottawa to show them that it could pay to undertake irrigation.

Officers Nominated At Legion Meeting

Election To Take Place At The December Meeting

Nomination of officers for 1938 took place at the monthly meeting of the local Legion held last Sunday afternoon.

The following members were nominated:

President — Messrs. A. Osgeard, W. Hill and H. Johnson.
Vice Pres — Messrs. J. Podesta, H. Howe and W. Kates.
Executive — Messrs. A. Shaw, C. Newburn, H. Lppard, E. Allen, E. McKinnon and F. Jones.
Voting for election of officers will take place at the December meeting.

It was decided that those nominated for President and Vice President, who were not elected, will be added to the list of candidates nominated for the executive.

Very little other business was transacted at the meeting.

The Local Red Cross Will Accept Clothing

Any Family Having Useful Goods, Asked To Donate

Representatives of the local Red Cross will meet in the Town Hall building on Tuesday next for the purpose of collecting for the purpose of helping the needy, clothing which has been donated by the local and other citizens.

The committee requests that any citizens who have clothing which they have no use for, their family would donate it to the Red Cross and if notified the committee will call for the goods.

THE MUNICIPALITIES SUPPORT WHEAT BOARD

Delegates to the Twenty-first Annual Convention of the Alberta Association of Municipalities went on record as supporting the plan for a wheat board to handle the marketing of all Canadian wheat.

Alberta profits from wheat sales for the year ending March 31st last totalled $2,100,000.

Mr. Burns advised that all municipalities should get behind this movement.

Mr. Black was of the opinion that the Chamber of Commerce and all interested in the development and improvement of the district, should be non-partisan and get behind every movement for advancement. He thought it wise to get both sides of all questions and if we are to make impressions on governments we must work together when we are favorably minded for irrigation. Mr. Black was of the opinion that the amounts of money spent by governments for feed in drought years after year would pay the cost of putting in an irrigation system and eventually save money.

The citizens who attended the meeting were greatly interested with the stand taken by the speakers and there is no doubt that all were anxious to see that the newly organized Chamber of Commerce would continue, and that all leading citizens would join and take an interest in it.

Possibility of Youth Training School in Town

J. A. Ross Paid a Visit Here Last Monday

Mr. J. A. Ross, director of Youth Training, arrived in town last Monday on request of Mr. D. Broadfoot to investigate the possibility of introducing a training school for young people in town who are now unemployed.

Mr. Broadfoot showed Mr. Ross where there was a space in the building which could be used for the purpose of a school, and Mayor Sangster, after interviewing the councillors, allowed the government to use the Broadway store building free for this purpose.

The training which was suggested by Mr. Ross was for carpenter work, light metal work, pottery work, physical training, St. John Ambulance and health training. This was particularly for boys but on some occasions girls could also be admitted.

At present only tentative courses were outlined, but in future some extensions might be made.

Although this proposition was not definitely decided upon, Mr. Ross was of the opinion that arrangements could be made to carry on.

If the proposition is developed there will be required some who will be capable of instructing and teaching the several subjects referred to above, and if there are any in town who feel capable they should send in their applications to Mr. David Broadfoot.

As to what action will be taken the council will decide at the next regular meeting.

The Big Interests

One is sometimes tempted to wonder why these so-called old fashioned virtues—thrift, hard work, prudence and integrity, are so frequently sneered at nowadays and discounted as something that is out-moded and therefore, if not actually to be abhorred, at least something to be ashamed of.

Despite the fact that history, and particularly comparatively recent history, abounds with the names of men who from little or nothing have built up great industries, have risen to wealth or power, by the application of these virtues, plus ability and foresight, it would appear as if they were to be condemned, and the capitalist "system" which in combination with a democratic form of government gives the poor boy an opportunity to rise from the ranks ought to be relegated to the ash heap, if any proponents of upheaval are to be believed.

Without holding any particular brief for capitalism and the capitalists one cannot help but deplore a good deal of the loose talk which is indulged in, all too frequently, in which the capitalist is held up as the foe of the common man and such terms as "the big interests" and the "big big boys" are used to express contempt. If not hatred, for those who have got along in a competitive world by their own efforts and in which such success (not borne out by statistics in the United States and Canada) "the rich are becoming richer and the poor are becoming poorer," pass for currency and are accepted by some as gospel.

It would almost seem as if some of the facts are forgotten; that, for instance, without capital labor could achieve nothing of consequence; that the co-operative efforts of capital and labor have made the luxuries of yesterday the necessities of to-day and that inevitably the luxuries of to-day will become the necessities of tomorrow and that nowhere in the world have these achievements been accomplished as in the United States and Canada. In this continent where free labor has been given to individual effort under a democratic, capital-labor system to an extent as yet unrealized elsewhere in actual practice.

Citing a number of illustrations of men who have risen to important posts in industry, J. Lambert, writer in the Ottawa Journal refers, among many others, to Walter P. Chrysler, whose story is an extraordinary tribute to these old fashioned virtues, and the late John R. Booth, of Ottawa, and goes on to say:

"Instead of wealth being in the hands of a predatory few, as is often alleged, its diffusion is the salient fact of our time. As a matter of fact in Canada, it is literally in the hands of millions. . . There is not a trace of subservience or co-operation among the capitalists in allegations that the big interests combine to thwart the will of the people. Chrysler and Booth had to meet stuporous rivalry at every step in their progress; and for that reason, so patient to the judicial mind, we use a misleading word when we speak of capitalism as a 'system'."

"Moreover," as Mr. Payne points out, "the exorcism of capitalism in certain quarters ignores the fact that it has existed since organized society began, and he concludes, 'will likely persist. Commerce is impossible without it.'"

And not in industry alone has capital, so far in the history of the world, been one of the two essential factors to civilized progress, but it is also an important element in agriculture. Every farmer is himself an illustration of the co-operative effort of capital and labor, for every farmer is both a capitalist and a laborer. Every man who purchases a half acre of land and a line of implements and power to operate them becomes a capitalist and when, in addition to that, he hires a man to operate some of his machinery he places himself in the category of a capitalist employer of labor. And every farmer who has employed one or more men knows that there must be co-operation and accord between himself and his hired man if both, or either, are to attain maximum results.

It has often been said that there is nothing new under the sun and that is true of efforts to decry capitalism and capitalism. The same cry has been raised during every depression which has stricken industry in the North American continent as was aptly pointed out, with examples, in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

If past history is to be regarded as a guide, it is probably fairly safe to assume that with the return of prosperity, the halting of what is regarded as "the big interests" will disappear as people become more occupied with efforts to increase their depression which has stricken industry in the North American continent as was aptly pointed out, with examples, in a recent issue of a popular magazine.

In the agricultural west which has been so hard hit recently and in these sections which are still facing the dire results of prolonged drought, the disappearance of the big interests will be welcomed, but the time will probably come when the rank and file will look back in retrospect and wonder what it was all about.

London's Passenger Trains

Over 7,000 Arrive And Leave Tomorrow Every Day

The British Railways Press Office announces that over 7,000 passenger trains arrive and leave London's seven main line terminals every day, an average of five trains a minute. There are in Britain partly a minute as many passenger and freight trains for every mile of track as there are in France, and more than five times as many as there are in the United States.—Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

Leaves Post

Aide-de-Camp To Lord Tweedmouth To Rejoin Royal Navy

Lieutenant S. G. Rivers-Smith has relinquished his post as aide-de-camp to the governor-general and left for England to rejoin the royal navy, which he left for service with Lord Tweedmouth.

Rivers-Smith came to leave his post at Ottawa "one year before his military service, feeling he would lose contact with developments in the navy if he remained longer."

Lieutenant Rivers-Smith accompanied the governor-general on his complete itinerary of his tour of the northwest and British Columbia. He was the only member of Lord Tweedmouth's staff who covered the whole journey of more than 10,000 miles.

His successor is Lieut. R. Scott, also of the royal navy.

Filing of Fingerprints

From Voluntary Filing By The General Public

Voluntary filing of fingerprints by the general public with police should be encouraged, reports of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, recently printed, state. Most instances of the value of fingerprints for identification purposes, apart from criminal investigations, have come to light.

"It is certain that at least the travelling public (and who is not a traveller) should be encouraged to file their prints with us for use in case of misadventure," wrote Inspector W. W. Watson, of the fingerprint section.

During the year we identified two unfortunate missing persons by their prints. In one instance we were able to satisfy an insurance company, and the promptly benefiting the beneficiary.

"Only recently a gentleman of periodic loss of memory could find his impressions with us. Possibly much worry would have been caused in numerous instances if the prints of certain individuals were available for comparison purposes."

The two "unfortunates" referred to were men found dead on railway tracks. One, found at St. Boniface, Man., was identified as Steve Kitch, whose prints were on record because he had been convicted in Port Arthur for assault. The immigration department had further particulars about the man which enabled steps to be taken to notify relatives in Ontario.

The other man was found at Belleville, Ont., and his prints were on record because of some offence. He was found to have been a former resident of Ottawa and his father identified a photograph which was also on file. There was some insurance on his life, and his relatives were able to obtain payment.

It is not unusual for fingerprints of the force were used in many cases of crime, assisting in the tracing of the records of persons arrested. It is in directing police to the offenders. One man was arrested although he took the precaution to wear gloves. A year on one of the gloves was an undoing. He was Thomas L. Mailli and the offence was breaking into a service station at Lindsay, Ont.

London Times Pays Tribute To Audrey Alexandra Brown

"The Tree of Resurrection" poems by Audrey Alexandra Brown, native of British Columbia, is the subject of an appreciative notice in the Times Literary Supplement. The verses are "entirely," says the reviewer who goes on:

"Her verse is remarkable for its unbroken, sustained, and rhythmic flow. Nor is its magic merely verbal or 'captivating.' She can express the sense, say, very beautifully, in such poems as 'White Bride' or 'The Wendigo.' But she is at her best when she is bringing the poet to life in 'The Russian Saint at Pompeii' for example, or 'The Tree of Resurrection' or evoking some moment when the hard outlines of actually are dissolved."

Novelist Has Reciprocated Used by Famous Italian Poets

Novelists have reciprocated used by famous Italian poets. The novelists have reciprocated used by famous Italian poets. The novelists have reciprocated used by famous Italian poets.

They have been placed there for safety by a woman who is afraid they may get into the hands of the wrong people.

She is Miss Kitty Shannon, novelist and daughter of the late Sir James Shannon, the famous R.A.

When she decided to write her novel, she went to Italy to bring out the poems they used for inclusion in the book.

Miss Shannon told the Daily Sketch: "I advertised in a Rome paper for somebody who knew the first thing that happened was that I had a visit from police officials, but I was a woman."

"Then I had a visit from a chemist. One drop of it will kill you."

The Word Hydro

Means Something Apart From Electric Power In Britain

In Canada, the word "hydro" usually refers to one of the country's most vital assets, hydro-electric power. It's a different story in Britain, where the people always think of the word "hydro" in connection with "Hydroponics." English and Scottish hydroponics are usually temperate, but have water cure and are the thing.

Canadians learned something about the hydroponics of the late Sir James Shannon, the famous R.A.

Two hydroponics were represented in the group—one at Fables and the other at the Hotelier. Hoteliers were in the fact that seemed to be a romantic to Canadian ears were the Upgrade Arms of Macfarlane, the Duke of Gordon Hotel of Kingston, and the Ballie Hotel of Aberdeen.

The last is named after a popular British Scott character, the "Rob Roy."—C.N.R. News Bulletin.

Bar Canadian Nurses

American Officials To Take Steps To Prevent Their Entry To U.S.

James Houghaling, United States immigration commissioner, in a letter made public by the National Nurses' Association, said immediate steps would be taken to prevent the further entry of job-seeking Canadian nurses into the U.S.

The association recently protested to Labor Secretary Perkins against what it called the "wholesale" importation of Canadian nurses "in hospitals in New York state and elsewhere." To the detriment of qualified graduate American nurses.

The protest was referred to Houghaling, who replied:

"I have been examining the records and am inclined to believe that the country we have been extending to this class of Canadian visitor has been overdone."

"I am therefore issuing instructions to our officers on the Canadian border that when Canadian nurses make for ordinary visits on cases which require temporary entry into the United States, visitor permits shall no longer be issued for the purpose of enabling Canadian nurses to enter this country to take jobs here."

Over $40,000,000 worth of Western Farm
Products poured into the East last year

In steady work, the industrial employee maintains a high standard of living. His appetite for Prairie Province foodstuffs is insatiable. He and his family are one of the reasons why over $40,000,000.00 worth of Western farm products found a market in the East last year.

Over $40,000,000.00 is a lot of money; it's a sum that means much to the Western producer, collectively and individually. It went, generously, to every type of farmer.

For instance, those specializing in live stock, took in over $15,000,000.00 for 127,000 tons of fresh and cured dressed meat, 175,705 head of cattle, 21,144 calves and 41,557 hogs shipped to the East. Nearly 10,000 tons of butter brought in $4,500,000.00 more, while grains, poultry, eggs, honey and other commodities accounted for an additional aggregate of well over $20,000,000.00.

That is why a prosperous industrial East means a prosperous agricultural West; for more and busier Eastern workers mean a greater demand on their Western community. Your purchase of a Made-in-Canada car helps towards this end.

There are 18,000 workers in Canada's automobile plants, and 15,000 employed in the 240 plant manufacturing plants. An average of four to a family owns over 18,000 people whose prosperity depends in whole or in part on the activities of the motor car business. Add to this the thousands of railway men, fire-fighters and men who are engaged in the production of goods and services that are essential to the life of the nation.

Dreadnought Of The Jungle

Rhinoceros Ranks Next To Elephant In Strength And Size

Rhurt House, In Our Dumb Animals, tells this story: Out on the high seas one might behold the mightiest of the navy on constant patrol. And deep in the forests of Africa I tell, the rhinoceros, or dreadnought of the jungle, patrols his domain.

The rhinoceros ranks next to the elephant in size and strength, often attaining a weight of 8,000 pounds. He has a short head and neck, a tall tail and a half foot and a massive humped body which is about nine feet long and five feet high and supported upon four short but stout legs. A single horn from one to two feet long grows upon the upper surface of his muzzle which makes him a formidable foe indeed.

Mr. Rhino is almost a living fortress within himself. An ordinary musket ball is unable to penetrate his thick hide. His skin is earth-colored, almost hairless and smooth. Walking slowly, he comes from his hide, while his horn, which carries a beautiful point, is made into drinkable eggs.

Three animals are found in herds of four to six feeding in marshy places near rivers. The most powerful warriors lead the herd, and they can only be hunted successfully with the aid of elephants. The rhino's mode of attack is to rush upon the elephant in an effort to rip him with his horn. But experience is a deterrent; therefore the rhino is always wise to this trick. He rarely turns back to receive the shock in his headquarters and little danger results.

Even then the mighty elephant is almost lulled by the sound of the ground. The rhinoceros is no respecter of private property. Should a lion pounce on his prey, he will immediately wake right on top of it. And on his nightly ramble, this fellow often plays great havoc with the "Indians' rice fields." He believes in regular habits, too, because he always follows the same path to his favorite feeding grounds or water hole.

This animal, like the elephant, is short-sighted, but possesses an unusually keen sense of smell, being able to scent danger a long way off. He is not particularly vicious, yet he has allies who warn him of an oncoming hunter. These allies are "rhinoceros birds," which constantly ride him to feed upon ticks and other vermin that infest his skin. If a tiger draws near, the birds utter harsh, grating cries. There fore, Mr. Rhinoceros loses no time in making off at a fast trot.

One never knows what a surprised child will do. He may draw near to investigate or he may stand without a moment's notice. When charged, he puffs and blows like a steam engine, coming through the jungle with his head low so that he may rip his enemy's clothes. To his way of thinking, mud baths are quite the style. Nothing gives him more pleasure than to wallow for hours in a mud puddle, and then let the sun dry the mud into a hard crust on his back.

The young rhinoceros follows its mother until nearly grown. He acquires the entire routine of life by watching the older rhino, and by teaching the younger those things that a properly reared dreadnought of the jungle should know. During all this time the father seldom comes near the nursery, and then only at night. A sort of temporary divorce exists between the parents until their offspring is grown, after which the father joins his family.

Wonder Caves In Australia

Naturally Decorated They Are Something Well Worth Seeing

Among Australia's most beautiful sights, and comparable to anything of their kind in the world, are Australia's Jenolan Caves, a series of mighty caverns in the rugged valleys of the Great Dividing Range just an eight hour rail or bus journey from Sydney. This is a world of fascination about any caves. But caves created by underground rivers and decorated by stalactites and stalagmites have been decorated by water with delicate limestone formations hung with magic tapestries, and draped with delicate lacework supported on natural stunted columns like rights never to be forgotten.

There are ten of these wonder caves, which have been decorated by water through the great limestone bolts above them.

After driving through miles of beautiful, wild mountain scenery the visitor gets his first glimpse of Jenolan as he descends the five-mile hill. It is the Grand Arch, a huge natural bridge 170 feet long and 40 to 50 feet high with a varying width of from 50 to 227 feet. Just below it is the willow bordered blue lake. Crystals of lime is the cause of the beautiful coloring of the water. This lake is the confluence of three rivers, two of which flow into the lake and the third through the Grand Arch.

There is another natural bridge high above the Grand Arch. It is Carlsburg Arch and is 100 feet high and 40 feet wide. It would be difficult to name one more beautiful than this. The cave is the most peculiar because it seems better than the last one. One of the most famous of the Jenolan caves is the River Cave, through which flows the river Styx, with a depth of 25 feet. The greatest of the Jenolan caves is the Jenolan Caves, which have been decorated by water with delicate limestone formations hung with magic tapestries, and draped with delicate lacework supported on natural stunted columns like rights never to be forgotten.

The caves are illuminated, but the lights are so placed that they add to the natural beauty and make the hanging canopies glitter like jewels. The caves were discovered in 1838 by a Charles Watson, who was following the tracks of stolen cattle. He called them Jenolan Caves because he had been there before him.

His camp was found by the visitor. The river Styx, though the Grand Arch, is still known as McKenno's Creek. Jenolan is an Aboriginal word and means a high mountain. The square miles of surrounding country have been reserved by the government to protect the caves and it is a sanctuary for Australian birds, animals and native flora—Australian Press Bureau.

Exkimo Pilot Well Known

Pietroque Figure Guides Ships Flying Into Hudson Strait

All skippers who ply into Hudson Strait know Navio, the Exkimo pilot who guides ships through the winding and treacherous entrance into Lake Harbor, the port often referred to as the Capital of Buffalo. His square face and his white name for Exkimo do not belie his sureness. For twenty years this sturdy built native has been an outstanding pilot in these parts and is famous from one end of Hudson Strait to the other among the Quinimut, the natives who live along these shores. Quinimut means "people who live in a warm country" for the ice-infested Hudson Strait in the sub-Arctic is considered a warm country to those who live within the Arctic Circle.

Even after he took up the job of pilot, Navio, who is now about 45, was the champion wrestler among the Quinimut and repeatedly proved it in contests at Lake Harbor, which port the natives call Kingman's. When Navio meets a ship to take her into port, he comes in state, accompanied by his three sons, two wives, and their children. The third son isn't yet married. As is customary with Exkimo the entire family travel as a unit.

The pilot meets the ship either at Big Island, which is out in the strait, or if he is too late to get that far, he stays at Beech Island, near the entrance. When the ship appears the family go out in a power boat to meet it. Navio and most of the family come aboard, leaving two of the sons to navigate the whaler as it is towed alongside the ship.

Bringing the ship into the harbor Navio usually wears the pilot's regulation uniform with double-breasted coat and leather peaked cap. When taking the boat out, however, he frequently wears a gaily adorned white parka instead of a coat, and becomes even more picturesque.

Like most Exkimo he is not very adept in learning English, and knows only a few words, but he is able to give his orders to the whesman in the familiar terms of "port," "starboard" and "steady."

This Complex World

National Welfare Depends On Mutual Adjustment Of Selfish Desires

Life has grown almost unimaginably complex in this modern world. The national welfare depends on the mutual adjustment of an infinite number of individual selfish desires— which boil down, in the end, to the varying ways in which each of us tries to get as many of the good things of life as he can possibly lay his hands on.

Our success or lack of it, in that age-old human quest depends largely on the sort of country we have—its degree of prosperity, its ability to evolve policies that will keep the economic machine working, its readiness to remove disabilities from the shoulders of the unfortunate.

Yet these things, in their turn, grow out of the way in which we as individuals go about the business of earning a living.

We are all links in a chain which describes an endless circle. No trade, business or profession can act in its problems without reference to the larger whole. It is hardly going too far to say that our national future depends on our ability to see our personal concerns in their relation to the national picture. If the college can help us to do this, then more power to them.—Calgary Alberta.

French Buying Diamonds

People Prefer To Put Their Savings Into Jewels

Diamonds continue to pour into France as the demand for the precious stones continues to rise. Paris has noted that although restrictions on gold have been removed and there is nothing to check gold hoarding the rank and file still prefer to put at least part of their savings into diamonds. In the first six months of this year precious stones, mostly diamonds, valued at $13,352,500, were imported in comparison to $9,000,000 in the first half of 1936.

Taking into consideration depreciation, the French have spent over four times the number of francs on jewels during the same period of last year.

Unity in Canada

Should Be Clear Road Between Urban And Rural Areas

There is no such thing as self-sufficiency within or without the city of Stratford. There never has been. There is little likelihood that any discernible line of cleavage will ever eventuate between this urban center and the rural areas that surround it.

Of late years considerable fratricide has drawn closer the natural bonds of fellowship. The future, we think, shows even greater cooperation. Misses mean little or nothing in modern transportation. The country means to the city with ease and dispatch. The city makes close neighbor of country. And both prosper by the interchange.

Unity is a pressing need in Canada today. The unity of urban centers and rural areas is the foundation upon which interprovincial cooperation can, and must, be built.

Finite notions of provincial self-interest, money needs be exploded. Canadians are one people at heart. It is fortunate that when we may need the reminder of this fact there are men in high places, such as Dr. Christie, to jog our memories in such a pleasant and effective manner.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

Have To Go Elsewhere

No Chance For Young Writers In Canada Under Author

Young writers of talent had virtually no chance of scoring "any kind of success" in the Dominion, he said, because there was "no medium for expression in Canada for the authentic Canadian writer." Morley Callaghan, one of Canada's noted writers, told the Canadian Association of Bookmen, at the Book Fair in Toronto.

"It must go to some place where his work will be accepted," said the author of "Strange Apples," on very about it, but unfortunately the young writer must live and he must go some place where people will pay him for what he writes."

As an instance Callaghan cited Raymond Knister who, he said, "produced some of the most authentic Canadian poetry we have." Yet Knister could only get his poetry accepted by a little-known English magazine in France and received "about $5 for it."

A Reflected Likeness

Others First Discovers Way To Heal Wounded Heart

When the first of a pair of golden fowl was accidentally killed on the farm of Clifford Freed, Inset township, Ontario, its mate seemed to pine and languish ever since it could see a reflected likeness in the shiny finish of an automobile when he stood in front of it.

Hour after hour he would stand on the running board of any car that might be in the yard indifferent to anything but his satisfactory reflection.

Taking pity on the forlorn bird, Freed secured a mate for him. Her presence at once made him forget the reflection and all went well with the happy pair until a day when his mate was missing again. Back he went to the care for solace. When there was none in the yard, he would go to the garage and gaze in the glass of the truck's windshield. Then his spouse reappeared, bringing with her twelve newly hatched golden fowl, and again the pair were abandoned to his new found happiness.

Know Everyone's Age

Man Suddenly Discovers His Memory Along That Line

Closely allied to the question of age is the question of memory. Human characteristic—none would say, failing. When a man goes searching for the past, in the memory of places, periods and people, he is dignified by the name of archaologist and his hobby is placed among the sciences. When men, or women, show more than average curiosity regarding the age of a statue, or even of a friend, people have a less dignified name for them, and their hobby is considered the less "respectable" of the nine.

Years ago I knew a farmer who had the bump of age-curiosity developed to a remarkable degree. He was not a good farmer in any agricultural sense; in fact, he was the most inefficient tiller of the soil in the entire community. But he knew the ages of every man, woman and child in the whole country. He couldn't remember what crop he had in the field before the garden the year before last, or how much seed was required for sowing an acre of turnips.

What he didn't know about farming would fill several volumes. But he could tell you that Jane Jones and John Brown and Bridget Maguire were all born in the same year. And he could name the year. He was a walking encyclopedia of births, marriages and deaths—New Outlook.

Cone-Bearing Evergreen Trees

One Of The Oldest Species, And Of Economic Importance

Botanists anticipate the first weeks of winter with real pleasure, for then is the time that the cone-bearing evergreen trees and shrubs are studied with concentration—the pine, hemlock, spruce, fir, cypress, cypripedium, cedar and juniper.

The pines and their relatives (conifers) are an ancient lineage. They are said to have existed before the advent of broad-leaved trees. Coal measures reveal the fossil remains of prehistoric conifers which had reached their prime when the more vigorous broad-leaved trees appeared and drove them to the swampy mountains and sea coasts.

All members of the pine family are either trees or shrubs, varying from low creeping forms (Junipers) to the largest forest tree (red cedar) and the smallest (dwarf spruce) evergreen, with hard-wooded leaves, either needle-like or scale-like in form.

The flowers, which appear in the spring, are of two kinds: the male or pollen flowers, and the female or seed flowers. The male flowers are in clusters of yellow dust, the male flowers usually drop off, though they are sometimes found on a withered conical clinging to a branch. The female flowers grow into the female cone. The cone, when mature, liberates the ripened seeds, which are often provided with long membranous wing-like appendages for dispersal by wind. The seeds of several species of pine are said to be edible.

The pine family is of great economic importance and it has claimed the artistic attention of writers and artists down through the ages. Who has not heard of "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," admired well-known paintings of pines, and read of the romantic "roughing peaks"? In the Book of Kings it is said of a "nomad of the mountains" "And he spoke of trees, from the cedar tree that is in Lebanon even unto the hyssop that grows out of the wall." The Cedar of Lebanon is not a Canadian species.

It is anticipated, however, that future studies will disclose the identity and economic importance of some Canadian species which may be encountered during the winter. glacial rambles that botanists love as well when "it is slipping and an'anger slush."

Woman Lives In Tree

Old French Village Man Home Inside The Trunk

The old woman who lived in a hole might be a fairy tale but near Rouen, France, there has been a woman who lives in a tree. Her home is built inside the trunk. Measuring about 64 feet in circumference at its base, the tree has been rotted at its center. The space inside has permitted the old village to install beds and chairs, with her kitchenette situated to the inside of the trunk. The tree is a European species called tiliac and its dried leaves and flowers, with a lemon flavor, are an ancient medicine which when dissolved into "tiliac tea" the old woman has left the upper stories of her home in the tree.

Arms Experts

Shipments Reported To Be Small And Mostly To Empire Countries

Canada's experts on arms and ammunition are "comparatively small," it was shown in the first reports coming out of the new legislation providing for the licensing of such exports.

In the three months the licensing provisions have been operating, a total of $178,181 worth of goods have been checked out by the department of national revenue but of this amount $104,488 was made up of aircraft and parts of aircraft of a military type.

Of course aircraft of any kind may be used for military purposes but there were no shipments under the department's classification of equipment "adapted or intended for military or naval reconnaissance or for aerial combat by the use of machine guns or artillery or for carrying and dropping bombs."

The licensing requirements became effective July 31 and the three-month period includes the months of August, September and October. In this period Argentina bought goods to the value of $84,438, the United Kingdom $48,025, the United States $17,546 and smaller shipments, totaling $61,197 were made to Australia, Newfoundland, Brazil and Mexico.

Amendments to the Customs Act made at the last session of parliament prohibited export of arms and munitions of war except under license. Shipments to Spain have been barred.

Leading items were: Aircraft (non-military) $89,376, of which $75,000 went to Argentina and $5,420 to the United States.

Ammunition, $72,194, all projectiles and small arms ammunition and all to empire destinations, $67,292 to the United Kingdom, $4,411 to Australia and $667 to Newfoundland.

Aircraft propellers, fuselages, tail units, undercarriage units and wheels, $12,337, of which $6,635 went to the United States, $5,000 to Argentina, $500 to Brazil and $200 to Mexico.

Small aircraft engines, $2,275, all to the United States.

Earth Tremors

Old Mother Earth Having A Harrowing Case Of Flights

Old mother earth has been having a rare case of flights, but take a seismologist's word for it—the jolts may be better than a long spell of rain.

Back in 1929, recalls Father Joseph J. Lynch of Fordham University, there was a rumble from the earth's interior for six months. Then came the crash that swept a tidal wave over a Newfoundland town. Burin peninsula, drowning a coast and ripping 13 cables from the ocean.

As for this year's series of quakes and grumbles, Father Lynch says: "You needn't be alarmed. It's no new thing to place. At least, things are a good deal quieter now."

They began early in July, when the Fordham seismograph—800 feet in a vault on the campus—began to trace a series of zig-zags. With increasing frequency the various rattlings have gone on for more than three months, but are now said to slack off.

"It has been the most unusual series of quakes since 1850," says Father Lynch. "We don't know what has been happening or what it may portend."

The tremors jumbled around the globe from Venezuela, N.J., to Japan, bobbed up in Central America, the Philippines and Mexico.

Becoming Popular Again

About 48,000 Bicycles Were Manufactured In Canada Last Year

Every boy and girl loves a bicycle and in Canada, too, the bicycle is becoming more and more popular. It is impossible to say how many bicycles are in Canada, but the fact is that can be done from the fact that about 48,000 were manufactured in Canada last year.

Over 37,000 were made in 1925. A good bicycle will care for us well for many years, says the number in the Dominion must be enormous. The old ones are in many shapes and sizes, and even some of the high speed specimens of the eighties and nineties are occasionally to be seen around. However, the modern safety bicycle has been pretty well standardized and the streamline idea does not appear to fit in, as the fashion is likely to change very much. It is the home manufactured bicycles we import a great many, and the bicycle business is closed for necessary repairs."

The following notes appeared outside a small church in Virginia: "The Rev. — will preach here next Sunday morning and evening after which the church will be closed for necessary repairs."

Nine million words were recorded by a single local court stenographer during the last four years. Justified may be blind but no one can accuse her of being tongue-tied.
